

↑ White out: Frogmore chief strips down and wears mask; (right) Kaplinsky

PHOTOGRAPHS: OLIVER KNIGHT

Paul White mouths off for charity

TV NEWSREADERS NATASHA KAPLINSKY and Mary Nightingale were among the celebrities last week at an event to raise money for a charity that provides special days for seriously ill young people.

More than £260,000 was raised for the Willow Foundation at the Frogmore Charity Dinner at the Riverbank Park Plaza hotel on London's Albert Embankment.

Around 500 people, many of whom were from the property industry, enjoyed watching Frogmore managing director Paul White raise £20,000 by stripping down to his triathlon kit and later become a ventriloquist's dummy.

Galliard Homes boss Stephen Conway agreed to donate £20,000 to ensure White put his tuxedo back on. Later on ventriloquist Paul Zerdin put a fake mouth on White's face, and then 'spoke' through him.

Former Arsenal goalkeeper Bob Wilson and his wife Megs set up the Willow Foundation following the death of their 31-year-old daughter, Anna, to cancer.

For more, go to www.propertyweek.com/willow